NYO is investigating a group of individuals that have created and distributed malicious software (malware) that allows cyber criminals to take over and control, remotely, the operations of an infected computer without authorization. The Blackshades organization provides several products under the Blackshades name. Among many of the advertised features of Blackshades products include the ability to capture keystrokes, steal passwords, perform denial of service attacks, and view the victim's web camera. In order to make their malware undetectable by computer anti-virus programs, Blackshades sells "Blackshades Crypter." Blackshades also offers other products designed to be installed without authorization and steal information from victims.
